

SONIC WORLDS

Welcome to your new 'Bleep' vocal library!

'Bleep' has been tailored for sweet and cute robot characters. It has a large amount of expressions so you can find the precise vocalization that fits your needs. And plenty variations to keep it vibrant.

When dealing with vocalization libraries, don't feel locked into the tags and descriptions. For example I used a Malfunction sound to indicate a zany character in the demo. One could easily use Surprised sounds for fear. De-activations could be used as death if it suits your production even though there are already Dying expressions. Vocal character can be remarkably diverse, and to tag each sound with all the possibilities it could represent would be a bit cumbersome. So don't feel restricted by words. Get to know the library and you will find it full of potential.

The library has plenty "tweakability". I decided not to over-process the sounds to avoid locking in an overly specific character too much. This way you as the end user has more versatility when using your own processing.

To that end I've made a video tutorial here that shows how to get more out of your Bleep sound library.

Specifications:

- BWF and SoundMiner Metadata has been embedded into the library.
- 211 sounds over 28 Files. Therefore each file has multiple variations rather than having 211 separate files.
- All files are 96kHz/24bit MONO WAV format.
- Extracted size is 155mb.

I'm very personable, so please feel free to contact me with any queries, questions, and even requests.

I wish you much success using it!
